Ending global hunger is one of the defining challenges and opportunities of our time.

The far-reaching effects of the COVID-19 pandemic exposed the vulnerabilities of our food systems, threatening hard-won progress in the global fight against poverty, hunger and malnutrition. Together with our partners, we are targeting the root causes of these challenges to build a more prosperous, stable and secure world.

Success is the people and places who rise to their everyday challenges and face them head on. We champion these communities and continue to build them up.

Check out our latest results

Was this forwarded to you?

Subscribe to Feed the Future's mailing list and get future emails direct to your inbox.
Feed the Future is the U.S. Government’s global hunger and food security initiative.